

Cooler character I know of is a Nashville girl who figured in boat mishap on Narrows lake about sundown Friday. Aubrey Albritton and I were coming down the lake from fishing in Rock creek when, half a mile south of Chimney rock, we saw an overturned boat with two persons hanging on, and a second boat standing by.

In the water were a Miss Crutchfield and a young fellow named Nichols, while Nichols' father and two other men were in the standby boat. It appears that the two Nichols and the girl turned over while three Nashville boats were coming down the lake together. One of the boats went for help while the other stood by the overturned craft.

With our arrival they were able to get the capsized craft righted and bailed out sufficiently to tow, and we brought in the boat, the girl and the father and son.

Was the girl frightened? No. Could she swim? Yes.

Worst disaster was this: They had their motor insured, and it was saved; but among the items you never insure—all of which are now down in 145 feet of water—were three fishing outfits, the ice box, and a good string of fish.

That last line stung Aubrey and me. The good fishermen turn over—the bad ones come safely home with a lone bass.

Congress passed a higher tax bill yesterday—which it was honestly bound to do—and so your withholding and income-declaration taxes will go up November 1.

During the Roosevelt administration when we got on this unlimited spending spree some of the juveniles would tell us: "Don't worry; you won't have to pay it—the other guy will . . . the guy with the money."

Now we know the truth. When you tell 'em, "Charge it, please," something unpleasant happens—you have to pay up, sooner or later.

William Harper Hale, writing the biography of Horace Greeley, great editor of the New York Tribune, discovers that when Greeley urged the youth of his day, "Go West, young man!" he may have had his tongue in his cheek.

What did Greeley actually say? Here it is, dated June 3, 1837:

"Mechanics, artisans, laborers, you cannot with safety give heed to those who prophesy smooth things."

We say to the unemployed, you who are able to leave the cities should do so without delay. You have a winter in prospect of fearful, unexampled severity? Do not wait to share an increase in horrors. Fly—scatter through the land—go to the Great West . . . Let all who can, betake themselves to the country . . . Away, then, hardy adventurers, to Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana or Wisconsin, if you have money to go so far."

Color TV Out for the Duration

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—You can forget all about the big color television controversy—there is not going to be any color TV for the duration of the emergency.

A defense order calling for an immediate halt in color TV production was disclosed yesterday. It had these effects:

1. Definite postponement of color television for the public. Industry estimates ran for two years up.
2. If you have been wondering whether your black-and-white set is going to be the mode for very much longer, or whether to buy black-and-white or wait for color, your problem is solved.

3. Before the ban is off, new color TV systems may be invented, or those in development perfected, thus perhaps settling right back where it began the long controversy over what kind of color TV the government should approve.
4. Whatever kind or kinds of color television eventually reach the market will probably be better than anything offered today.

At present, the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS) holds the only license for making color TV. The federal communications commission (FCC) gave the CBS system the nod just a year ago. The Supreme court upheld the FCC last spring and in June CBS began color telecasts from New York.

It bought out an existing television set manufacturer and began making CBS color TV sets. Other companies were getting in production, using CBS patents. It was estimated 50,000 color sets would reach the public in 1953.

Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson revealed yesterday he had written to CBS President Frank Stanton, asking him to suspend production immediately. In New York, Stanton said he promised compliance. CBS said its last color telecast for the duration would be today's Maryland-North Carolina football game.

Strong Porkers Overpower Bobcats 13-0

Texarkana's powerful Razorbacks had to go all out last night to rack up a 13-0 victory over a light but fighting band of Bobcats in District 7-AA competition.

Doped to lose by a sizeable score, the Bobcats forwards apparently weren't awed by a 20 to 30 pound weight advantage in the Porker line and the only thing that stopped them from fighting was the final whistle.

It definitely was a moral victory for the Hope line which fought and clawed the burly Texarkanians from start to finish and in the second quarter held for 4 downs on their one yard line. The ball ended up back on the 6 yard line.

The entire Hope team — Byers, Neal, Doyle, Barbaree, Monts, Camps, England, Martin, Baber, Bright, Lile, Wiggins, Churchwell and Stanford — were defensive demons and were hitting hard at the final whistle.

Texarkana's victory was largely due to the power of a hard running 180 pound halfback, Dale Works, who was the only consistent ground gainer of the night. Works gained 97 of his team's 140 yards and scored both touchdowns.

Fate apparently was against the Bobcats who failed to take advantage of an opportunity to score in the first half and had a touch-down called back in the final period. The Bobcats blocked a Texarkana field goal attempt and the ball rolled in the clear back to the 20. Neither side apparently realized the ball wasn't dead and either of two Bobcats could have picked it up and ran for a touchdown.

Again in the final period Hope missed a tally when Orville Bright took a pass from Jimmy Baber and sidestepped his way 45 yards and paydirt only to be told he stepped out of bounds on the 20. From there Baber passed to England on the Porked 6 but an interception ended Hope's only serious threat.

Texarkana scored in the opening quarter going 54 yards to the Hope goal with Works ploughing over from the six. Schmieder kicked extra point to give the Hogs a 7-0 halftime lead.

In the final period the Porkers worked the ball in Hope's six but again the Cats held. A short punt gave the Hogs the ball again on the Hope 33 and they were on the move for pay dirt. On offense penalty cost them the first touchdown but Works did it again. Score 13-0. Texarkana also had a touchdown called back midway in the second period. An Evers to Works pass was good for 50 yards but a penalty voided it.

For a contest that featured bruising line play it was surprisingly clean. Each team drew 30 yards in penalties. Texarkana's line held the Bobcats to only 24 yards rushing with Brown, Ottwell, Douglas and Gilley standing out. But the terrific play of the out-manned Hope line was the feature of the contest. Only one team has been able to score on the Porkers all season — a mere 6 points — while the Hogs have tallied almost at will. At the final whistle last night the Porkers were glad to settle for 13 points and they had to fight for every inch of ground.

Statistically it was Texarkana in every department. The Porkers made 15 first downs to Hope's 3; yards rushing was 140 to 24 and yards lost rushing were Hope 10 and Texarkana 31. Texarkana passed 5 times, completed 3 for 35 yards. Hope passed 14 times, completed 2 for 35 yards and had 5 interceptions.

Making the Hair Stand Up for a Wig Wearer Is Real Hairline Business Secret

By SAUL PETT (For Hal Boyle)

New York (AP)—This was top secret, so Louis Feder was taking no chances.

He looked nervously from side to side. The door was closed and the corridor beyond was quiet. The window was open but, 11 floors above Fifth avenue, he seemed safe enough from enemy ears.

"No one else has the process," Feder began in a cautious murmur. "Nobody but me. It's completely secret. I got four men working on it, but none of them knows what the other three are doing. No one of them could make the thing itself."

Feder glanced around again. "You see, the secret is in making the hair stand up. Sure, other people make crew-cut toupees, but none of them can make it so the hair stands up the way it does in a crocheting process."

"Everybody likes them, bankers, brokers, actors, business men. They're selling hotter than anything on the market now."

The wigmaker, a short man with a finely pointed mustache and thin, reinforced hair, exhibited his two

American Tanks Enter, Shell Reds in Kumsong

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 20 (AP)—American tanks smashed into Red-held Kumsong today and blasted Communist targets there for one hour. They returned to the main United Nations line two miles south without a casualty despite heavy Red anti-tank and artillery fire.

A pooled dispatch said two companies of M-48 Patton tanks rumbled into the outskirts of the Red's central front bastion.

Earlier Saturday Allied tanks probed to within a mile of the city and pounded it with high explosives.

About one mile to the south Allied infantrymen battled in wind and rain for the last major ridge-line below Kumsong. Some U. N. ground troops could look down into the town from high ground to the south. Kumsong is 30 miles north of the 38th parallel.

An Allied briefing officer said the tanks were "exploring" the area. They pushed around a "C" shaped bend in the river and opened fire from the entrance to a valley that trends directly northward into Kumsong.

Southwest of Kumsong other Allied troops inched forward and captured a hill.

The Eighth Army communiqué said advancing U. N. units were 2,500 yards — less than a mile and a half — from Kumsong.

The general belief around Eighth Army headquarters was that U. N. troops could take Kumsong if they wanted to. Whether Gen. James A. Van Fleet would order the city's capture immediately remained to be seen.

Headquarters officers also had one ear cocked toward Panmunjo where there were indications a compromise might get the stalled truce talks started again.

On the eastern front American tanks rumbled through the canyons east of Heartbreak Ridge testing enemy strength. One column drew mortar and artillery fire from Red positions along the hillside.

Far north of Heartbreak, a U. N. battalion hurled back an enemy counterattack 50 miles above the 38th parallel. This was at the advance point of a corridor stretching north along the eastern seacoast under the protective guns of Allied naval forces.

Only major action on the western front was a fight 10 miles north of Yonchon. Chinese defenders there hurled Allied infantrymen off a hill.

A quick turn in the weather brought mist and fog to the ridge lines of the central front. A light rain fell during most of the day.

The adverse weather sharply curtailed United Nations air activity. AP Correspondent Sam Summerlin said the Red defenders of Kumsong met the U. N. push with 1,000 rounds of artillery.

Earlier Saturday, the Allies captured a hill south of Kumsong. Reds had taken it during the night in a counterattack supported by heavy mortar barrage.

Eighth Army infantrymen moved ahead 300 yards in the early morning hours after a series of 100 counterattacks was pushed back. Saturday was the eighth day of the United Nations advance on Kumsong.

An Allied officer said 1,000 rounds of artillery poured into the Red-held road hub Friday. Most of them were directed at Communist supply dumps.

The U. N. Allies pounded a battalion with tank and artillery, their assault on the last ridge line barring the way to the city. U. N. warplanes strafed and bombed the Reds.

The Reds bitterly defended their positions directly south of Kumsong. To the southwest, resistance was described as "surprising light."

Summerlin quoted a regimental commander as saying, "We are fighting hard, but we are not rolling. And we are keeping them rolling as long as we keep pushing — and don't let them stop to dig in."

Cowboy Tim Holt Charged With Perjury

Little Rock, Oct. 20 (AP)—Movie cowboy Tim Holt, guest star at the Arkansas Livestock show, was charged with perjury this morning in court to face charges of perjury.

Pulaski Prosecutor Tim Owen, who filed the charges yesterday, accused Holt of testifying falsely in a divorce hearing that he was a resident of Arkansas.

Owen filed a similar charge against Frank Swilling, of Little Rock, Holt's witness in the actor's now dismissed suit for divorce against Alice Harrison Holt.

Swilling, an employee of the Arkansas Livestock Show association, and a legitimate employee during recent benefit sessions, posted a bond of $2,500.

Holt left Little Rock after the livestock show was over. His presence here, and it wasn't known at the time, whether he would return voluntarily to Arkansas to face the perjury charge.

Perjury (swearing falsely) is a felony punishable, on conviction, by a prison term of as much as 15 years.

The charges, Owen said, grew out of a hearing on Holt's divorce suit before Pulaski Circuit Judge Frank H. Dodge on Oct. 4, while Holt was here for the livestock show, Holt and Swilling testified.

The prosecutor said Dodge indicated approval of the divorce suit, which Mrs. Holt did not resist, but withheld formal action pending preparation of a decree for his signature.

Later, however, State Sen. Max Howell, of Little Rock, Holt's attorney, reported to the court he determined Holt was not an actual resident of Arkansas and asked that the suit be dismissed. Dodge did so.

The suit had been filed in the name of Charles John Holt Jr., Holt's legal name, and Howell said he did not know until the hearing was underway that his client was the actor and was not an Arkansas resident. The felony information was lodged against "Charles John Holt Jr., alias Tim Holt."

Howell blamed a "misunderstanding" on the part of Holt for the situation.

State Sen. Clyde Byrd, of El Dorado, secretary-manager of the livestock show association, filed an answer to Holt's suit as Mrs. Holt's attorney. The answer asked only that Holt be held to "strict proof" of the indignation and other grounds which he alleged.

Holt and he and Mrs. Holt married in 1944 and separated in 1948. She now reportedly is at the Holt ranch near San Diego, Calif.

Budenz Lashes at State Department

Seneca, Oct. 20 (AP)—Communist in the U. S. state department largely were responsible for the "delay" in taking a stand against Russia in China and Korea, charges Louis Budenz, himself a former Red.

Budenz told 1,100 delegates to Harding college's 10th annual Freedom Forum here yesterday that, "We must take a stand against communism now—tomorrow will be too late—we must elect leaders who are real Americans."

Budenz is the former editor of the New York Daily Worker. He quit the Communist party in 1945 and now is a professor at Fordham university, urged the outlawing of the Reds.

"While arming the world against Soviet aggression, we have failed to arm ourselves within the United States," said Budenz. He added that Russia has been overplayed as a great power and "sadly underrated" as a conspirator with the United States.

Budenz also warned against a new Red movement, the interfaith movement for peace. He called the organization "a movement designed to spread Communist doctrine throughout religious organizations and churches."

Budenz's speech climaxed the closing day program of the forum.

Atomic Test Gets Off to Bad Start

Las Vegas, Nev., Oct. 20 (AP)—Push-button warfare just around the corner?

The start of the latest atomic weapons test was set back two days as scientists pushed a button yesterday to explode a nuclear mass from the top of a 100-foot steel tower, and nothing happened.

It took Dr. Alan C. Graves and his fellow atomic energy commission scientists all day to find and fix the trouble in a faulty electrical circuit, one of thousands in the intricate mechanism required to set off an explosion.

By that time the scientists were so tired that the nuclear series opener was postponed until tomorrow morning, weather favoring.

Graves and Carroll L. Tyler, AEC test manager, explained that they and most of the workers at the YUCCA Flat test site had been working 30 straight hours.

"We'll have to rest our personnel before resuming," said Tyler, ruling out an explosion today.

Tyler said the AEC has no objection to a blast on Sunday. The second of the series of five tests here last winter was held on Sunday, Jan. 20.

At a news conference ending the frustrating day, Tyler for the first time disclosed that the initial test is utilizing a 100-foot tower. He said there was no tactical significance to the return to a tower, which device was used in the original A-bomb test at Alamogordo, N. M., and later at Eniwetok.

Tyler explained that "a fixed-point detonation gives us the opportunity to compile more accurate data and to correlate it better" than other methods of exploding the weapon, such as dropping it from a plane.

The AEC official said the circuit break was not due to any error by a worker, but was a case of one interesting complex mechanism that contained "miles and miles of cables, relays and various circuits, all connected in series."

It was learned reliably that the troop phase of the new experiment may not come up for at least a week. The AEC has said that soldiers are not involved in the opening test. The fact that high AEC and defense department officials had not yet appeared indicates the history-making tactical test is not immediately forthcoming.

Meanwhile, the 5,000 GIs at Camp Desert Rock are still waiting for their first atomic burst.

Regarding yesterday's fizzle, Dr. Graves said it was the first time that a test had failed after reaching the stage where scientists count the seconds down from "10" to "0." On "0" the button is pushed, making the contact that explodes the atomic mass.

This time, said Dr. Graves, "we had said 'boom.'"

Stalin Renews 'Moral' Support

Moscow, Oct. 20 (AP)—Soviet Premier Stalin renewed today his moral support of the Korean Communist regime "in its heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of its homeland."

He sent a brief telegram to the Korean Communist premier, Kim Il Sung, in answer to Kim's greetings on the third anniversary of formal diplomatic relations between Russia and North Korea.

Kim said "the help and support given us by the Soviet Union are a firm guarantee of victory in a just war for the freedom and independence of our homeland and against American interventionists."

The telegrams were published prominently in all Moscow morning papers. They were similar to greetings that have been exchanged between the two Communist leaders on previous occasions.

But Stalin's telegram, coming immediately after publication of Russian rejection of a United States request for help in ending the Korean war, stressed strongly Russian friendship and support for the North Korean cause.

VETS AID BILL

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Senate passage sent to the President last night a bill to speed federal aid payments to states which maintain homes for the support of disabled veterans.

The measure would permit federal aid from the date that a veteran was admitted to a home rather than from the date the veterans administration certified he was eligible for care.

The cost of the legislation was estimated at $103,000 a year.

Golden-eye ducks, uncommon in the area, were sighted in large numbers in Lake Meade National Recreation Area early in 1951.

reached "0", pushed, and just stood there looking at each other.

One scientist remarked: "We're really getting efficient. We saved the tower this time."

And another added: "I wish I had said 'boom.'"

Court Action Pops Up in Louisiana Race

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 20 (AP)—Court action loomed as a possibility today in the fight of Lucille May Grace and Leander Perez to oust Rep. Hale Boggs (D-La.) from the race for governor of Louisiana.

The Democratic state central committee by a 63-21 vote yesterday dismissed charges brought by Miss Grace that Boggs was ineligible because, she said, he once joined a Communist-front organization. Boggs denied the charge.

After the committee dismissed the charge on a technicality—holding it was improperly filed with the committee secretary instead of with the chairman—Perez said:

"I am sure nothing this committee has done or attempted to do can prevent a trial before the courts."

Perez, who waged the battle for Miss Grace before the committee, is a political powerhouse in south Louisiana. National director of the States Rights movement, he was once a staunch supporter of Gov. Earl K. Long but is now at political odds with the governor.

"It was Gov. Long who led the fight to dismiss the ouster charges, despite the fact that the governor is backing Judge Carlos Spahn of Baton Rouge for the governorship."

"Let Leander Perez, Hale Boggs, or anybody else who wants to, run for governor," Long shouted at the committee just before the vote was called on to vote.

The committee actually voted on two of Miss Grace's conventions that Boggs was ineligible (1) because he had not resigned as representative prior to filing his qualification papers and (2) because she said, he had joined a Communist front organization.

Texan Leaves His Egyptian Dancer

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 20 (AP)—Sheppard King, the red-headed Texas Moslem who is aiming to wed Egyptian Belly Dancer Samia Samir, kissed her goodbye at the airport today and winged for his old home on the range.

Samia cried a little and her eyes were wet. But King promised "I'll rush back to Egypt as soon as I get my divorce."

He's headed for Texas to re-divorce his first wife, Gloria. They were divorced once, but patched things up temporarily and secretly remarried in Dallas last June.

King, who adopted the name "Abdullah" when he took Moslem religion last week, said he was also going to try to "make up" with his mother. She said, when she heard he was becoming a Moslem to marry Samia, that she would disinherit him of the family's oil wealth.

Fair Enough

New York, Oct. 18 — Martin Quigley, who runs a moving picture magazine and swings some weight in the editorial phase of the movie as an unofficial spokesman for Catholic morality, is spitting like a roman candle over my comments on his implication in one of those letterhead groups holding forth in Arthur J. Goldsmith's apartment in the Waldorf Tower. I said, in passing, that some prominent Catholic laymen overplayed their role for reasons not necessarily purely spiritual.

"That's certainly true but, even though Quigley's prominence in this respect were profitable to his magazine, I couldn't say what goes on in his heart although many a rug on the other side of the fight freely imputes base and hypocritical motives to me. I don't need Quigley's help but I think it would indicate something if he would come and pick up a nickel ball-bat and take a few swings for us anti-Communists."

I have read over my remark four or five times and there is no application to Martin Quigley. But since he is so sensitive as to think so, I withdraw that part of my little essay but nothing else.

Martin wants to make an issue of the question whether he wanted me to go to lunch with him to hear him explain how he happened to throw in with this Goldsmith outfit.

I say he didn't. But he admits that he refused to tell me his reasons on the phone, so what does it matter whether he wanted me to discuss it over lunch or across a desk in his office or mine? What is the matter with the telephone? Tapped or not, why should he hesitate to declare himself?

The reasons why Quigley joined this thing which can be used to delude a lot of fellow-travelers aren't worth any more of my time and diligence than it took to call him up and find him unwilling to tell me on the phone. A highly fastidious anxiety lest some innocent person be unfairly smeared as a former partisan of the Bolsheviks is one-sided and wrong-sided.

I never hear those parties who believe "McCarthyism" taking on behalf of Angela Calomiris, a spirited little American patriot who spent seven years in the Communist party as a spy for the F.B.I. and, as her reward, was insulted by John Morris, the picture editor of Ladies Home Journal, on the ground that she might be a spy in his office, too. There was a wild hullabaloo when Jean Muir, an actress of minor distinction, if any, was dropped from a radio show because someone had said she was a fellow-traveler. But why is so much more important to protect one accused of being a Red or sympathizing with the Communists than to uphold a loyal American girl who is placed under a boycott by the picture editor of Ladies Home Journal?

I have known Martin Quigley for years and I freely state that I am impatient of men who enjoy deserved standing and public prominence as religious leaders and as

Sport-Portrait
An "inside" report on what's going on with Alabama's football team gives it in one word: "Sew-Sew." Six of the 12 touchdowns scored against Alabama by LSU, Vandy and Villanova came after fumbles inside the 10-yard line and one after an "Sew-Sew" punt. "Trade" and "Sew-Sew" Joe Cronin, assigned to Alabama's line during the past season, to see what players might hit into Red Sox pants. If they could get them, "Television talent" records have been paying attention to Dolly Stark, the former umpire, who has been making a lot of unpaid guest appearances. And, speaking of TV, Frankie Jay, who retired from managing fighters to try a piece of an Eighth Ave. saloon, is reported to have made a formal protest to NBC Matchmaker Al Weil. Frankie claims the fight on the TV screen was so bad they were keeping customers away from the joint.

It Stance to Reason
The Louisiana State football team was looking on past offense two ends, cross-crossing their routes, crashed together at full speed. They were "Jolted" started and barely able to get up when End Coach Ben Eames, scratching his head, remarked softly: "Gentlemen, let's check up on our stance. I believe somebody has made a mistake."

It looked like good football weather for most of the country today. The only rainy areas early were in Montana and northern Minnesota. Some snow fell in parts of the wet belt. But fair weather was reported in other areas.

blow but had laid the scalp open to the skull. From that moment he was a blown man, and though he fought his command through to the bluffs, he was sick with pain the whole time.
"Clayton, listen," he rasped, as McIntosh left to fetch Moylan, the senior captain. "I can scarcely hear or see. Don't tell French or Moylan. You stay here with me, you hear?"
I nodded, smiling. Then, my lips to his good ear, I shouted, "You've picked an aide. Got my degree under Job Stuart. Postgraduate with Fitzhugh Lee."

WE waited for Moylan and McIntosh, the Sioux meanwhile stacking fire as they moved their forces into new positions.
"All right, Major," Moylan said. "Where do we go from here?"
"God knows. But I say up to those bluffs is our only chance. Get up there and stay there. What do you say, eh?"
"We can't make it!" I talked fast, before he could worry too much about my qualifications. "If we stay here they'll get the horses. I know Indians and their thinking. Right now they'll be sleeping in around French's flank over there on the right, trying to get in and stampede the horses. We can't handle the mounts if they get panicky. Not and have any men left to keep up a fire. If the Sioux get us afoot down here on the flat, we're dead."

"Oh, where is Custer?" broke in Reno, querulously.
"And Benteen," added McIntosh. "God knows about Benteen." I hurried on, "But I think Custer's tried to go around. He was convinced the Hunzapa and Ogila were down south. He's gone around to hit them. We can't wait any longer, anyhow." I had to shout over the rising Sioux fire. "We've got to mount up and make a run for those west bluffs."

"Give the command, Moylan," Reno's instruction was decisive. "The Sioux are coming!"
I pulled Reno in and banded his head. It had been a glancing blow, but it had been a glancing blow.

THE howls went up from them like a pack of blue-tick hounds belling a dog-roon in a swamp hollow at midnight. White Bull, one of Sitting Bull's nephews and apparently in command on our front, lashed his pony forward.
Then the pistol was bucking in my right hand. Three empty ponies blundered on into the wood. McIntosh knocked one off his pony with a clubbed carbine and I put my last two shots into him as he fell.
Reno, either dazed or just too slow a man with a gun, got belted out of his saddle by an ax-blow from White Bull.

We pulled Reno in and banded his head. It had been a glancing blow, but it had been a glancing blow.
"McIntosh! Reno's commands were terse. 'We're going out of here!'"

California, UCLA Game in Spotlight

New York, Oct. 20 (AP) — The college football season reached the halfway point today with only one game on tap that could have any bearing on the national title — barring upsets, of course.
The big one is scheduled for Berkeley, Calif., where 81,000 persons will crowd into Memorial stadium to watch California, the No. 1 team in the country in the Associated Press poll, battle its neighborhood rival, Southern California.
The Golden Bears of Lynn "Pappy" Wadell are rated 13-2-point favorites over once beaten U. S. C. California has not lost a regular season game in the past four years, but is ineligible for the Rose Bowl, having played there last Jan. 1.
If the underdogs win, not only will the national rankings be thrown into confusion, but the Pacific Coast conference title could be settled. As of now, these are the only two teams being given consideration for the title.

Elsewhere, most of the action also is regional. In the east the Columbia-Penn game at Philadelphia could have a bearing on the Ivy League title. Penn has beaten the Lions in 11 of their last 13 meetings, but Lou Little's men will be at full strength, with punter Tony Misha set for action after being bedeviled with a virus infection.
Tennessee, the second ranked team in the nation, faces what should be a relatively easy task against Alabama in Birmingham. Before the season got under way, they were saying that if Tennessee could get past the Crimson Tide, the Vols would win the southeastern conference crown.

But things don't always go as expected, and Alabama already has lost three times. That should make this one nothing more than a good scrimmage for Gen. Bob Neyland's powerhouse.
Another big game in the South pits Georgia Tech against undefeated Auburn. Tech, the No. 5 team, will go into first place in the Southeastern conference if it comes out on top as expected.

Maryland, shooting for the national title vacated this year by Oklahoma, meets North Carolina at College Park, Md. North Carolina is a tough customer. The Tarheels have not lost a game in this series since 1926, but this one should be their downfall.
In the Midwest, the best of the offerings are intra-league games in the big 10. Ohio State plays host to Indiana. Michigan journeys to Iowa, and Wisconsin takes on Purdue.

Two of the league teams — Illinois and Northwestern — are involved in intersectional tilts, while Michigan State, a member which doesn't count in the standings until 1953, will test Penn State. Illinois tackles Washington at Seattle, and Northwestern plays host to Navy. San Francisco travels across the country to tangle with Fordham.

In the Southwest, Texas, No. 4, plays Arkansas. Texas A. and M., No. 6, meets Texas Christian, and Baylor, No. 10, clashes with Texas Tech.
